Simply Vintage, August 2014

A little earlier, we made an obligatory stop at Kidron where we took photos in the temple of hardware known throughout the entire country: Lehman's.

There one finds the Rolls Royces of stoves, designed like classic cars, all supplies and tools needed by farmers and Amish families who do not use electricity, agricultural equipment, oil lamps, tools, toys, old remedies, locally produced preserves and wooden toys. It is an incredible store, opened in 1955 by Jay Lehman; it has retained the authentic patina of the four old wood buildings of the 1840s. One may have lunch there on checked tablecloths, dining on delicious products from local farms.
